

Helxine Solierolli/Baby Tears Care Instructions

Common Name: Baby Tears

Baby Tears is great for terrarium use. The tiny orbicular leaves of about ¼" form dense mats of ground cover. The plant spreads very rapidly once it has been established, but requires high humidity. If grown in a pot, it is best to locate it on a windowsill above the sink and mist daily.

Light: Filtered light.

Water: Keep evenly moist, not soggy.

Temperature: Prefers temperatures above 55 degrees.

Fertilizer: Once a month during growing season.
